HOW TO USE CANDY MOLDS

How Do I Use a Candy Mold?

For basic, solid candies, use melting chocolate and follow the instructions on the package. Once melted, use a spoon or disposable decorating bag to fill the mold and gently tap it lightly to remove air bubbles will float to the surface.

Place the filled mold in the fridge or freezer until the entire bottom of the mold looks frosted over and the candy is set. Watch out for dark-looking areas, as these indicate that the candy is still soft. Unmold candy by turning the mold over about an inch from a flat surface or by gently flexing or

How Do I Add a Nut Center to My Candy?

To get the classic salty-sweet combo of nuts in chocolate, melt your candy as directed and then fill each cavity half full. Tap to let the bubbles escape, and then place one nut per each cavity in the mold. Fill the rest of the cavity with more candy, tap again to release bubbles and place in your refrigerator or

How Do I Make Layered Candy?

For layered candy that looks like it's got striped sides, melt two or more colors of chocolate and place in disposable decorating bags, then pipe in the desired number of layers. Tap the mold after each layer to make sure you

How Do I Make Candy Lollipops?

Pipe melted candy or chocolate about halfway into each cavity and tap it to release air bubbles. Insert a lollipop stick in the notch, twirling it around until it's completely covered. This ensures the stick gets a firm grip on the candy. Fill each cavity to the top with more melted candy, tap and chill until set. Check the underside to see if it's frosted over. Once done, tap the mold on your counter and lift it by using the stick.
